

I am very disappointed to learn that the FCC is considering stifling the programming on XM. XM is a great service for those travel to great distances. It never fades out or becomes inaudible. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to have travel and weather information given 24 hours a day over the satellite radio waves. Those are two things that are often needed very much in travel, and usually unavailable. Please do not clamp down on this valuable service and industry. It is truly the future of radio. Please reject NAB petition 04-160.
